THE GREAT GASBAG

Regarding Stan Hart's "The Great Gas-bag," I "stared at it for an hour without talking"! It was a bad enough mismatch on the screen; Mia and Robert! What a relief to move on to the real people in "Alfred's Poor Almanac"!

Roberta Kahn
Brooklyn Heights, N.Y.

It took me three Alka-Seltzers to get
"The Great GASbag" out of my system!

Andy Hanas

NO SANTA THIS YEAR, VIRGINIA!

That's the spirit! Obligatory gift-giving is a seasonal downer; like being whipped with a candy cane by Marley's ghost.
Cheers to Rickard and the "Claus That ing"!

Shirl Probert
San Marino, Calif.

As a Business student at my state college, I was thoroughly disgusted at your "vile" attempt to take "commercialization" out of Christmas.

Paul Hooson

DON MARTIN'S NATURAL HISTORY

I agree with the Director filming "Don Martin's Natural History Movie: The Great Golden Eagle"! A real bird is needed for the part. However, don't replace the field mouse. He showed a lot of acting savvy and camera presence!

MAD SOLUTIONS TO DOGGIE-DO PROBLEMS

Al Jaffee's "MAD Solutions To Big

sitle appropriate ridicule of the thought-lessness of too many dog owners.

Sheldon Boren

When my dog saw Mr. Jaffee's anti-do

Chris Rozek

Jaffee wouldn't have such great bod-

I had my secretary make copies of it

Eli Barnett

Kirby Beranek

Jaffee's inventive word which denotes

Timmy Marek

SO WHY NOT PARDON HITLER!

I am nutty enough to enjoy much of the MADness in your publication. BUT...the back cover which equates the responsibility for covering up a bungled burglary of a hotel room with responsibility for the deaths of fifteen million human beings (give or take a few million) is really a scream. HWISHERS

ARTIST: MORT DRUCKER

WRITER: STAN HART

Hello, Dad! This is your Son-In-Law, Seymour! I've got some good news and some bad news . . . !

Well, first the good news! The temperature today will be in the mid-seventies, with no chance of showers!

Mom and Selma got beaten up and raped, and they're in the hospital!

Okay, what is it . . . ?

And the bad news . . . ?

Oh, my God, Dad! This is absolutely terrible! It's simply horrible! It's . . . it's just awful! I mean, my God, what a shocking thing! Isn't it shocking?

Yep . . . !
I can't believe it! Why them?!!

Dunno . . . !
Hey, Dad! Why aren't you showing any emotion?

You're showing enough for both of us!

Mr. Krazey, I've got some good news . . . and some bad news for you! First the bad news! Your Wife died!

And the good news . . . ?
Her condition won't get worse!

Do you have any leads on the punks who killed my Wife and attacked my Daughter?

The only information we have is that one of them was a six-foot-seven-inch bald-headed teenager who lives on the upper West Side! It's not much to go on!

Aren't you gonna DO anything!

Please, Mr. Krazey! You have to understand! If we tried to track down EVERY killer, we wouldn't have time to bust up crap games, or pot parties, or illegal stickball games!!

Hey! Get away from that car!

Why? It belongs to me!

Then why are you breaking INTO it?!!
Just to keep in practice!!

The best way to defend yourself is to get $20 worth of quarters . . . and put them in your sock!

Gee . . . doesn't that make it kinda tough to WALK?!!

No, dummy! You keep the sock in your pocket, and when someone attacks you . . . wham! You hit 'im with the money!

What happened? Didn't you follow my advice?

Well . . . almost!
What do you mean—almost?!

You know how afraid I am to carry money in New York! So I put a $20 Travelers Check in my sock instead! Hitting a mugger with THAT don't DO much!

Now, out here in Arizona, we have plenty of land! So I don't want any of your Urban Slums!

That's gonna be a tough assignment!

Really? How come?

Well . . . I never built a RURAL Slum before!

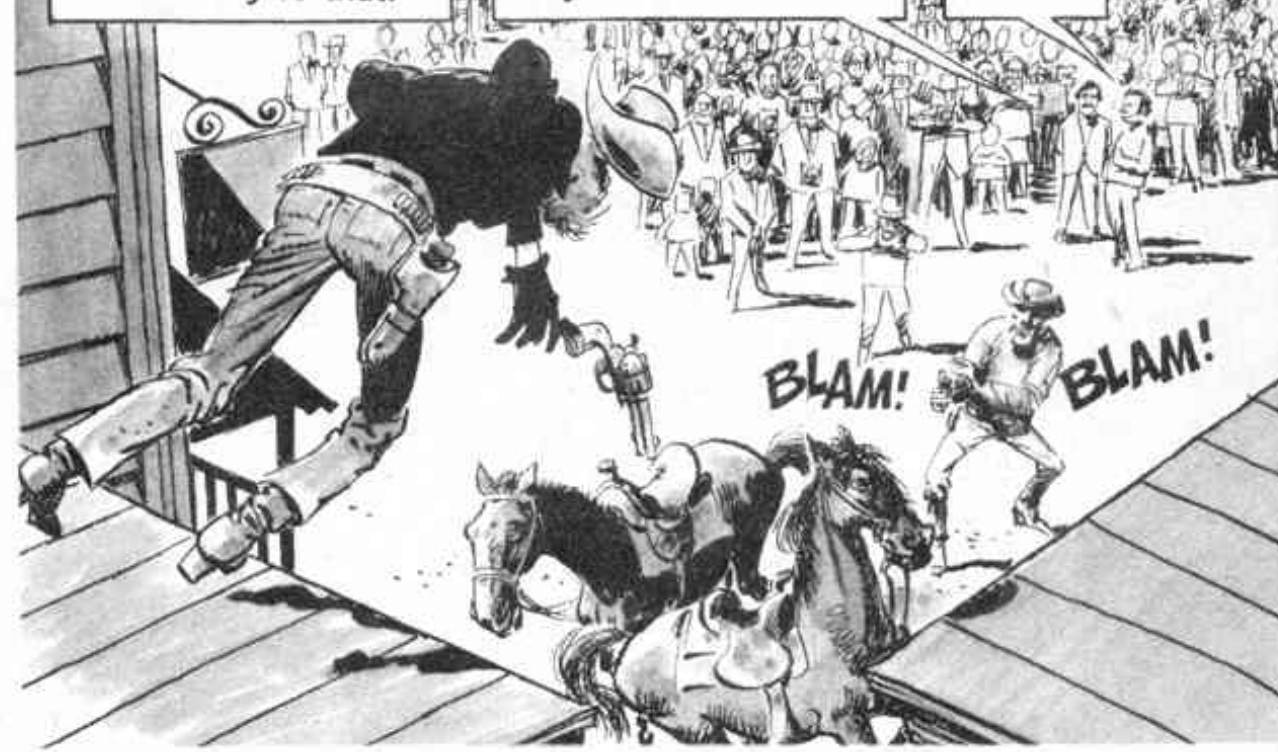

Tourists really love these "Western Shoot-Out Shows" we put on!

'Cause they think we use real bullets!

'Cause I KNOW we use real bullets!

The dumb suckers! But why do YOU love 'em?

I see! Why IS that?

So you don't like guns, eh?

How come?

That must've been rough!

No! I was a Conscientious Objector during the last war!

My father was shot and killed while we were hunting deer!

It was! You know how hard it is trying to drive through heavy traffic with your Old Man strapped to the hood of your car?!!

Krazey I like you, and I don't want you getting hurt back in New York . . . so I got you this little present!

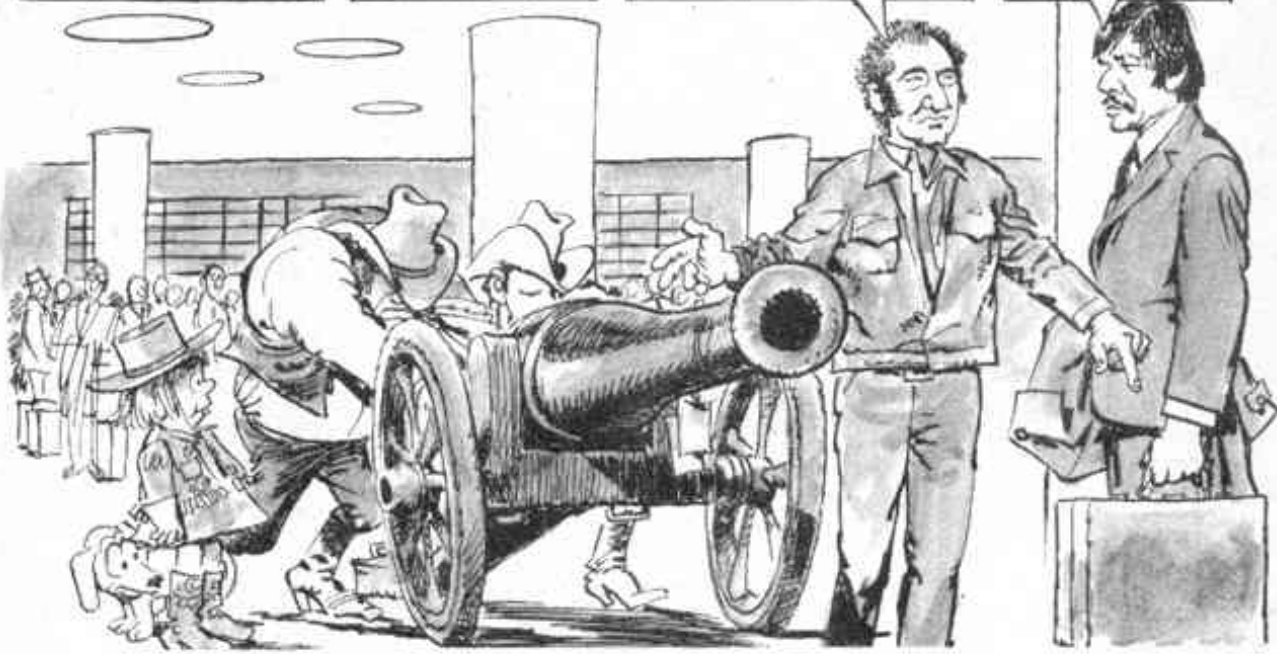

Gee, thanks!

You're too kind!

Great! When they X-Ray my bags, I'll get 20 years for being a HIJACKER!!

Take it with you whenever you go out on them dark streets!

An' I also put a pistol in your luggage! Just something for around the house!

How's Gloria?

Well, give me the bad news first!

You believe that?

I've got good news . . . and I've got bad news . . . !

The Doctor says she's nothing but a vegetable!

I'm afraid so! She's being treated with salad oil!

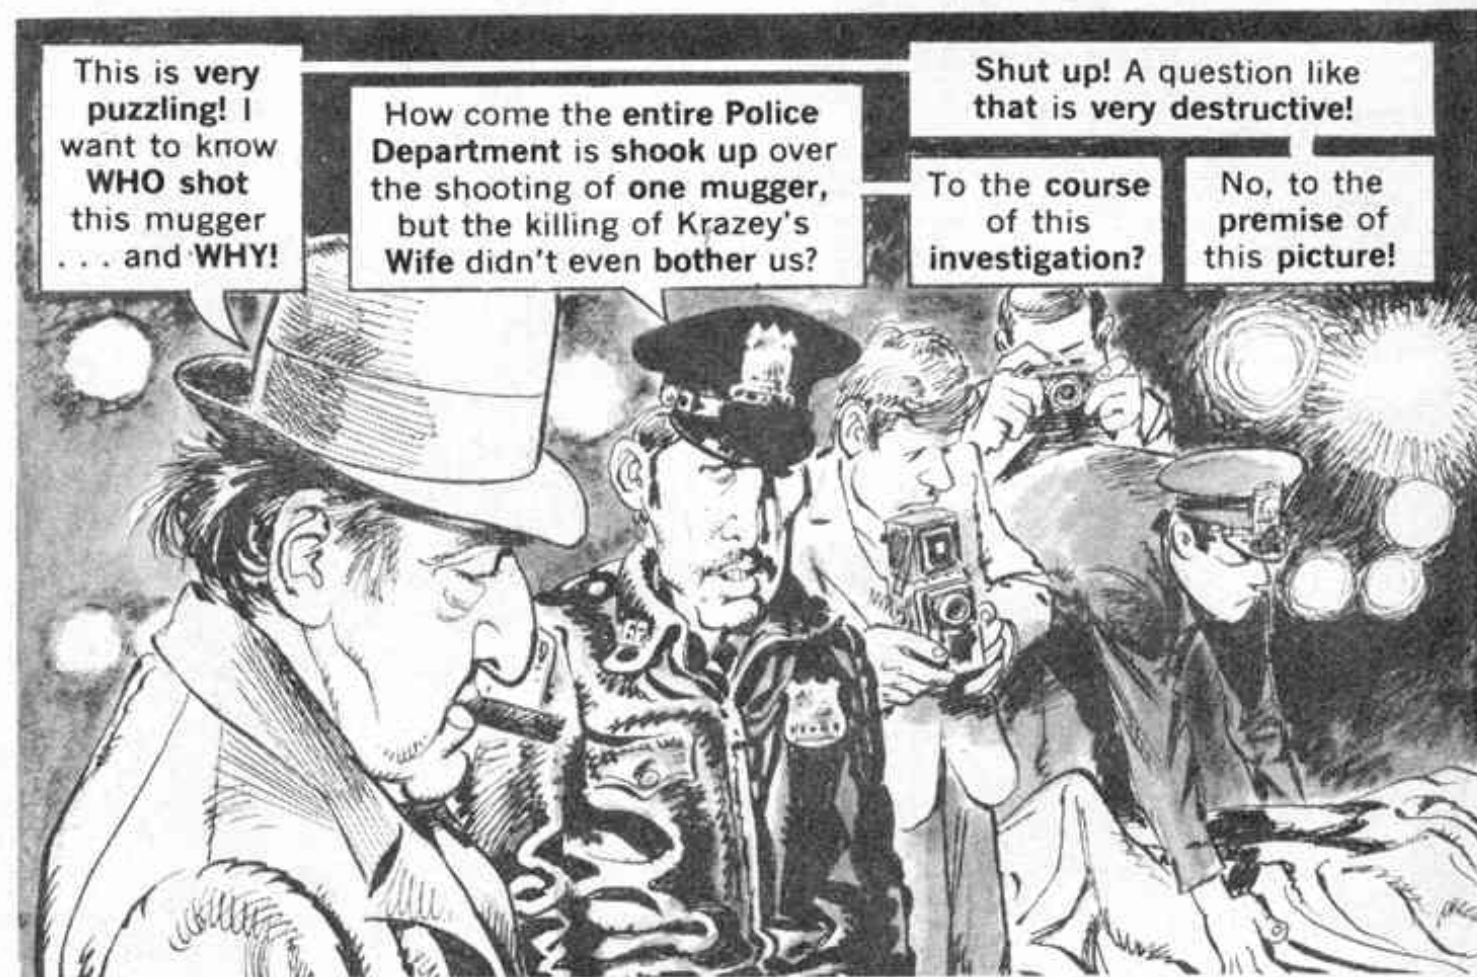

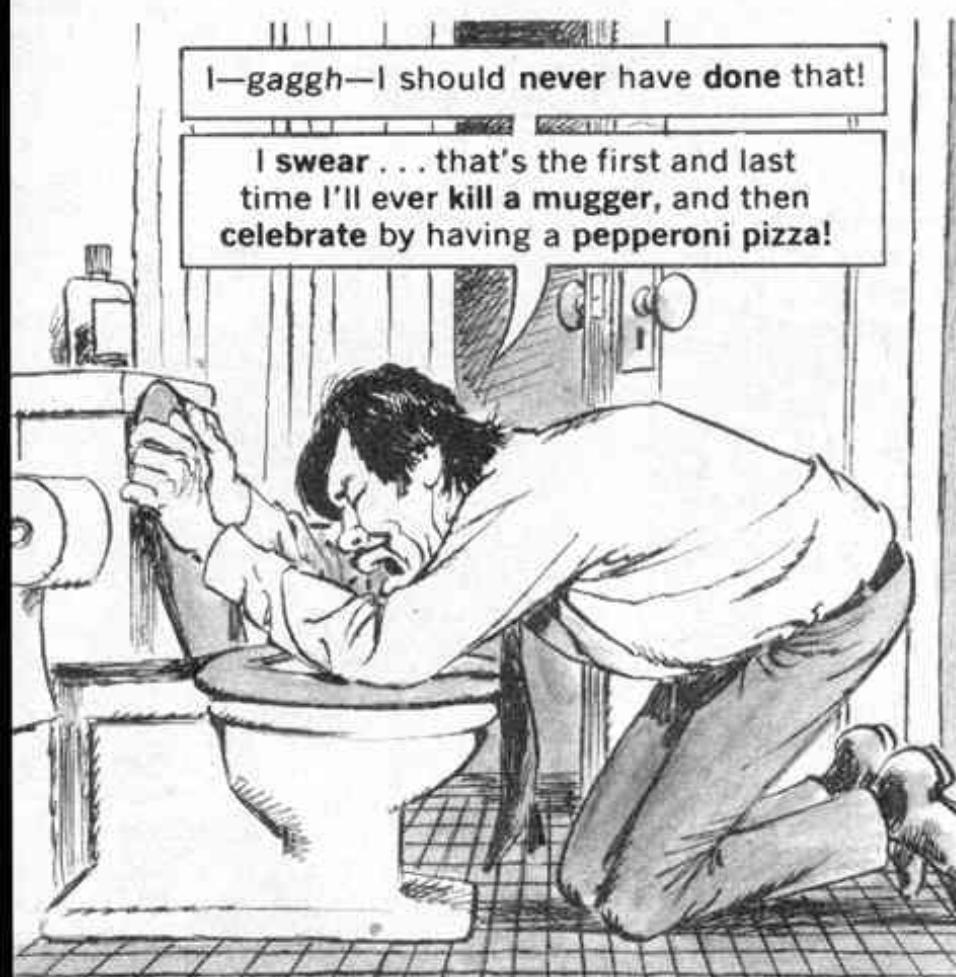

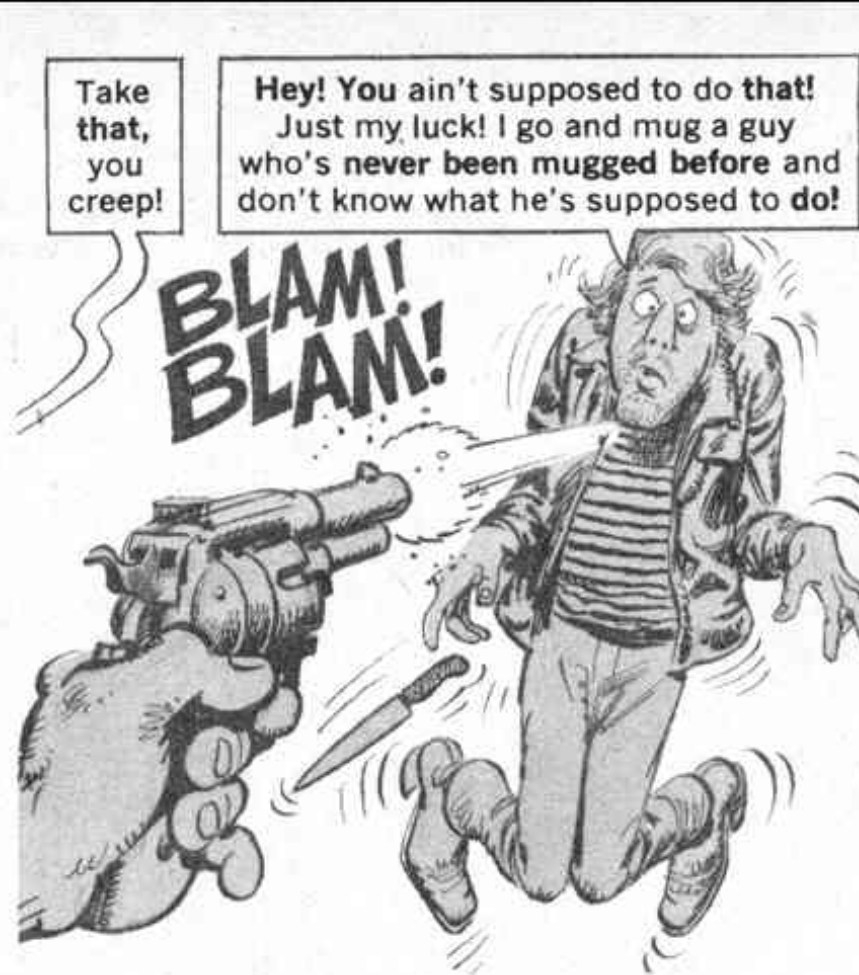

I'm so lonely! I miss my Wife!

Here are the pictures we took on our vacation in Hawaii . . .

Hmm! Maybe I don't miss her that much after all . . .

I... I told you it wasn't safe to... ride the subway... at night! Unnnngh!

I'm here for your money!

Oh, yeah!?

All I wanted to do was... collect for the... Girl Scout cookies... you ordered, Mr. Krazey... Uggghh!

It's amazing! Since this Vigilante Killer started, muggings are down 45%! And that's not all...

... overtime parking has dropped 63%...

... litterbugging has declined 58%...

... and jay-walking has dropped 73%!!

Today, inspired by the Vigilante Killer, people are starting to defend themselves... like Mrs. Elsie Guerrio here! How'd you do it, Mrs. G.?

I used a hat pin! When that louse tried to take my purse, I whipped this out... and he just ran away!

And this experience changed your entire outlook on life...?

You betcha! I'm not defenseless any more! I've got me a weapon!

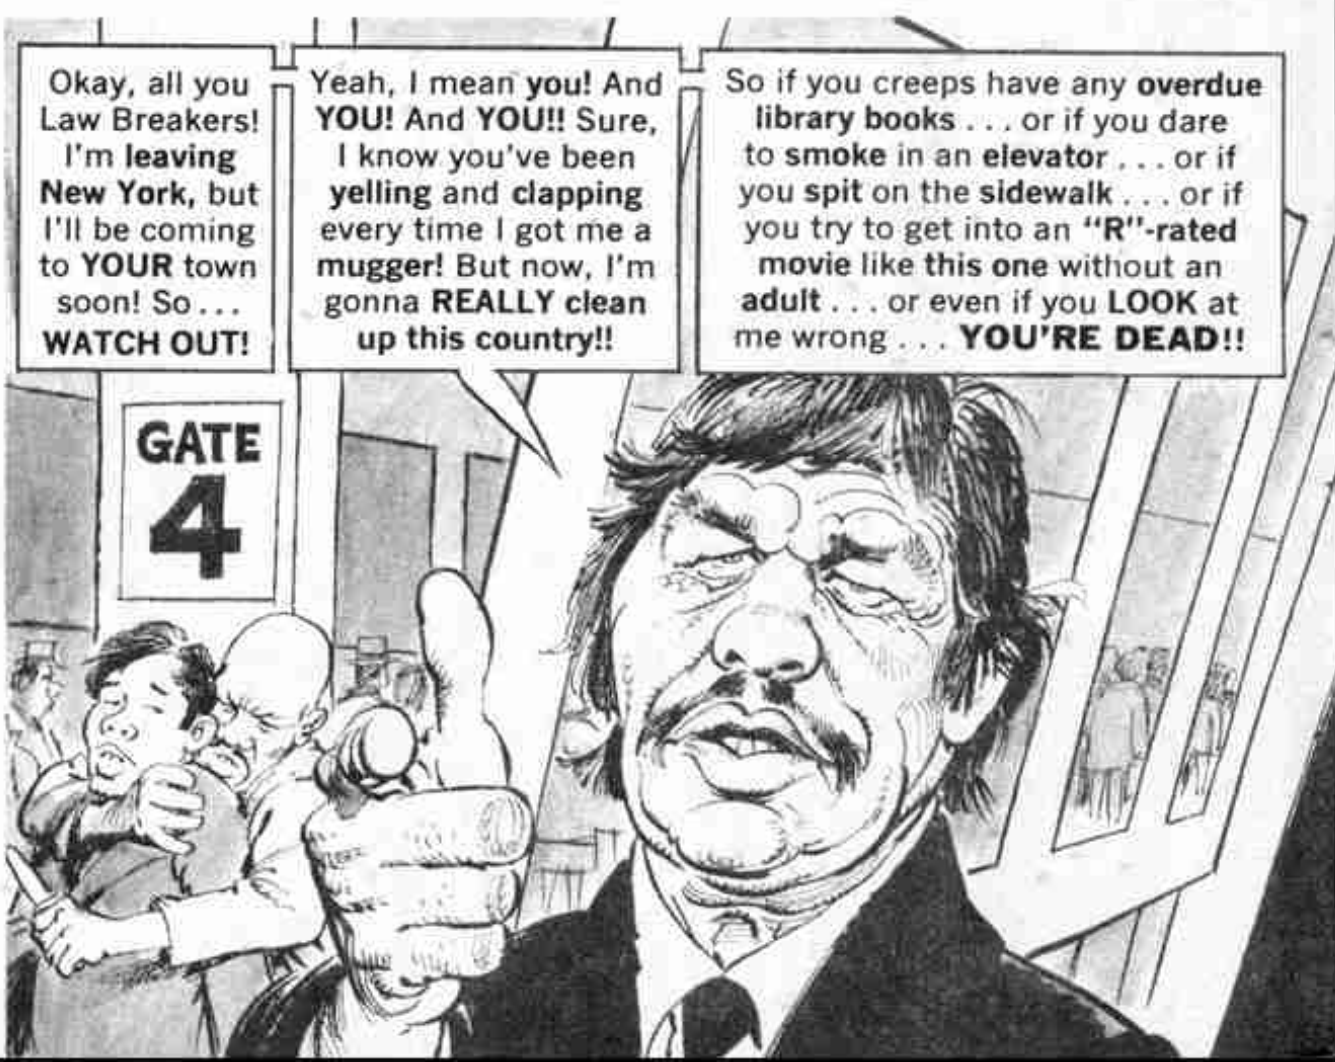

What about the future, Mrs. G.?

I'm gonna become a MUGGER!!

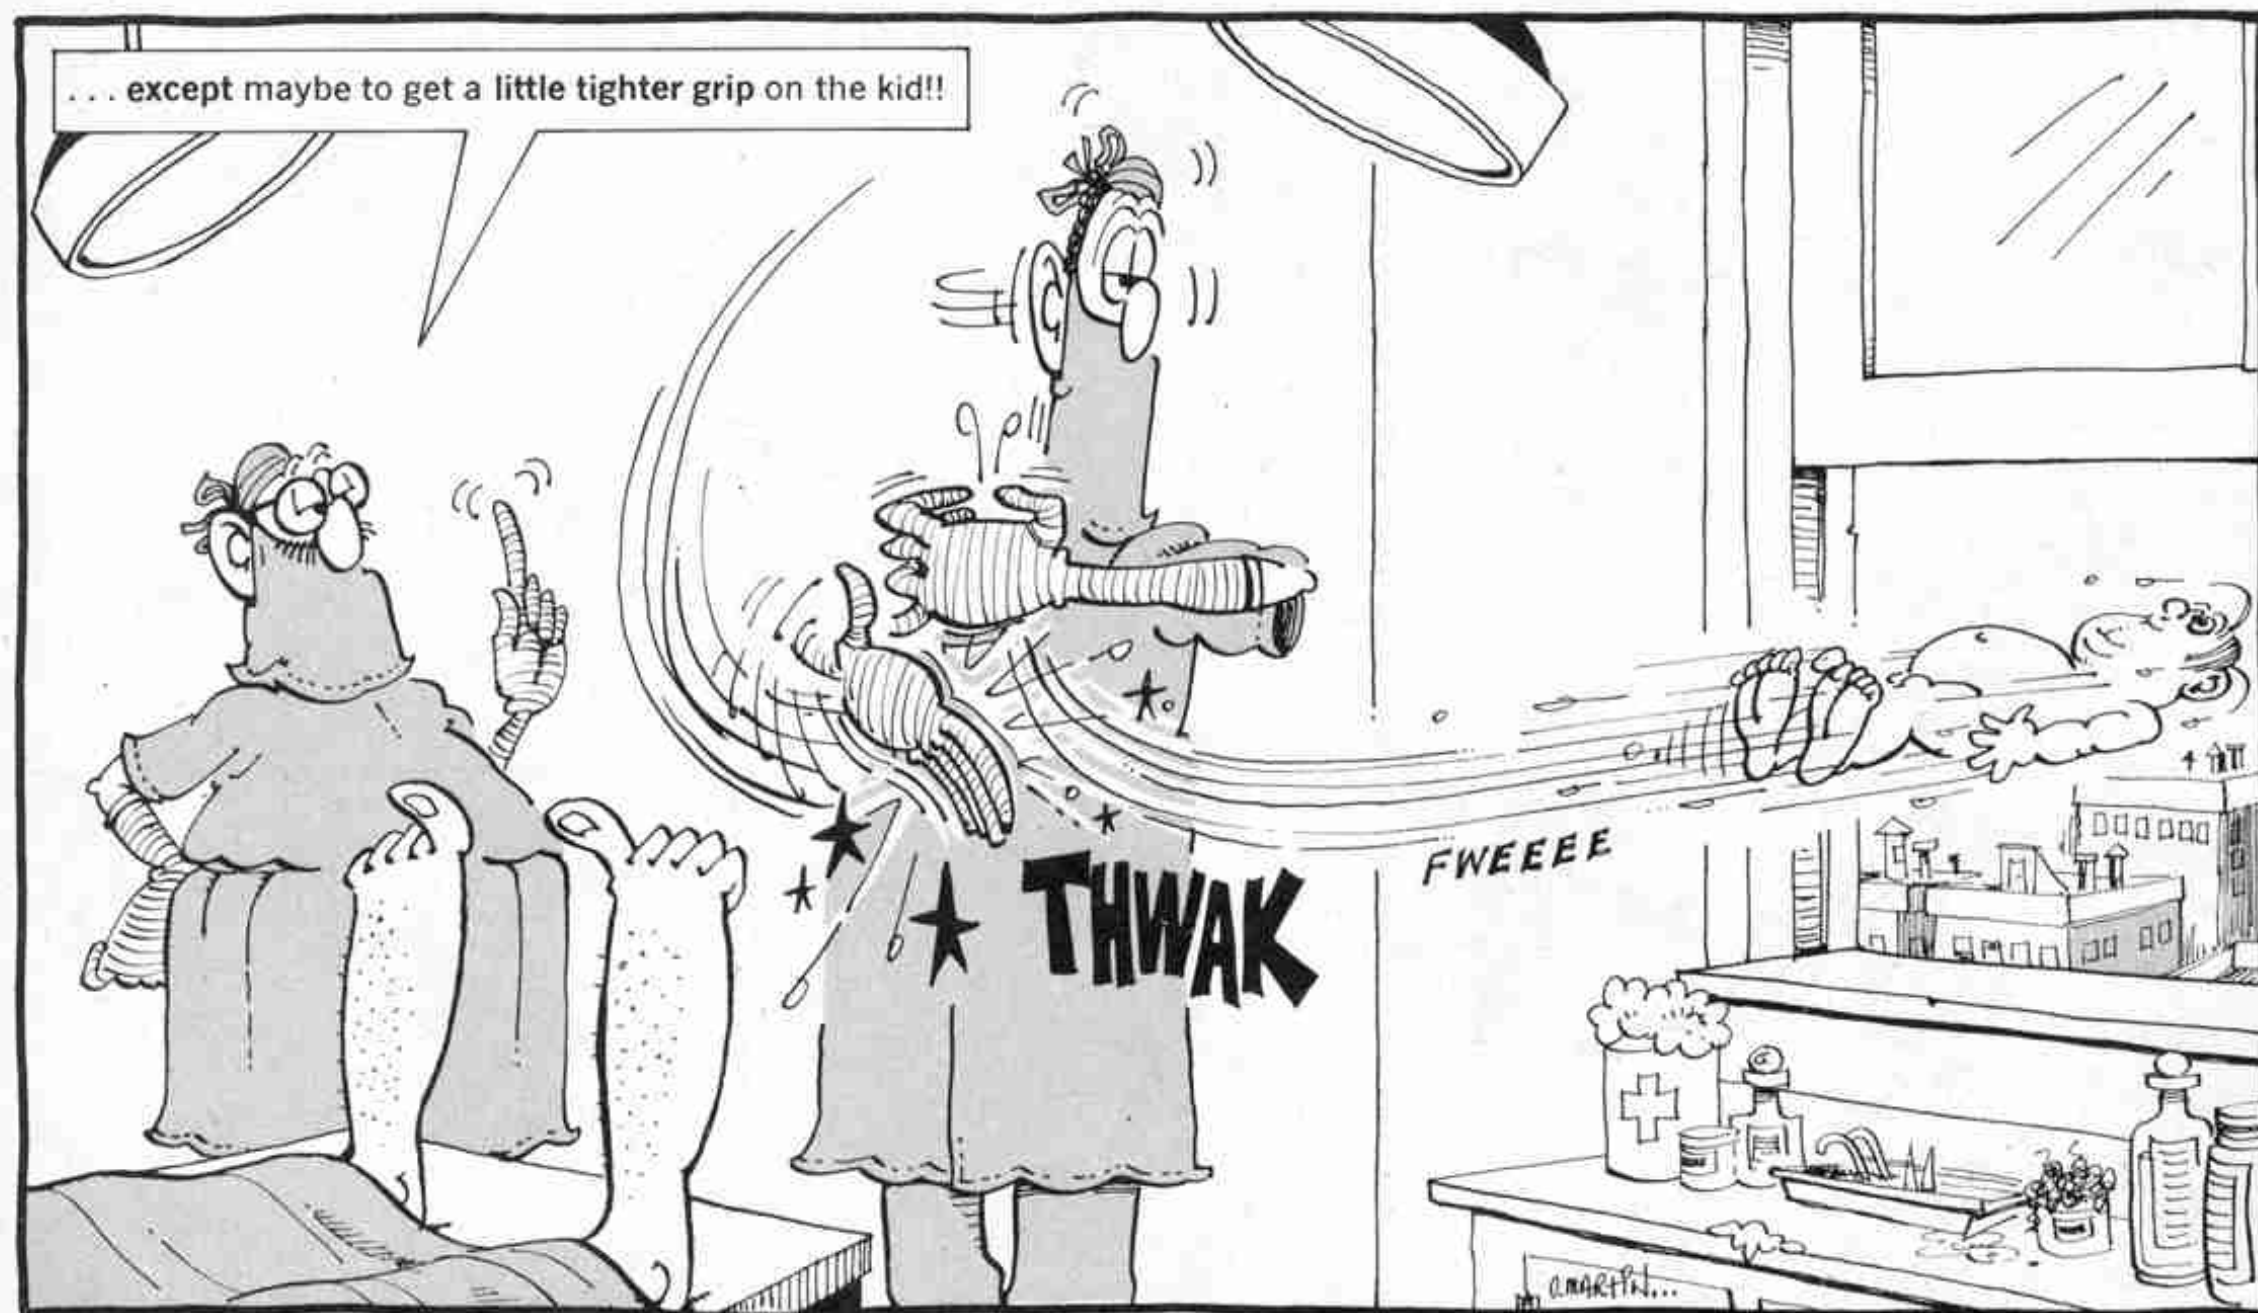

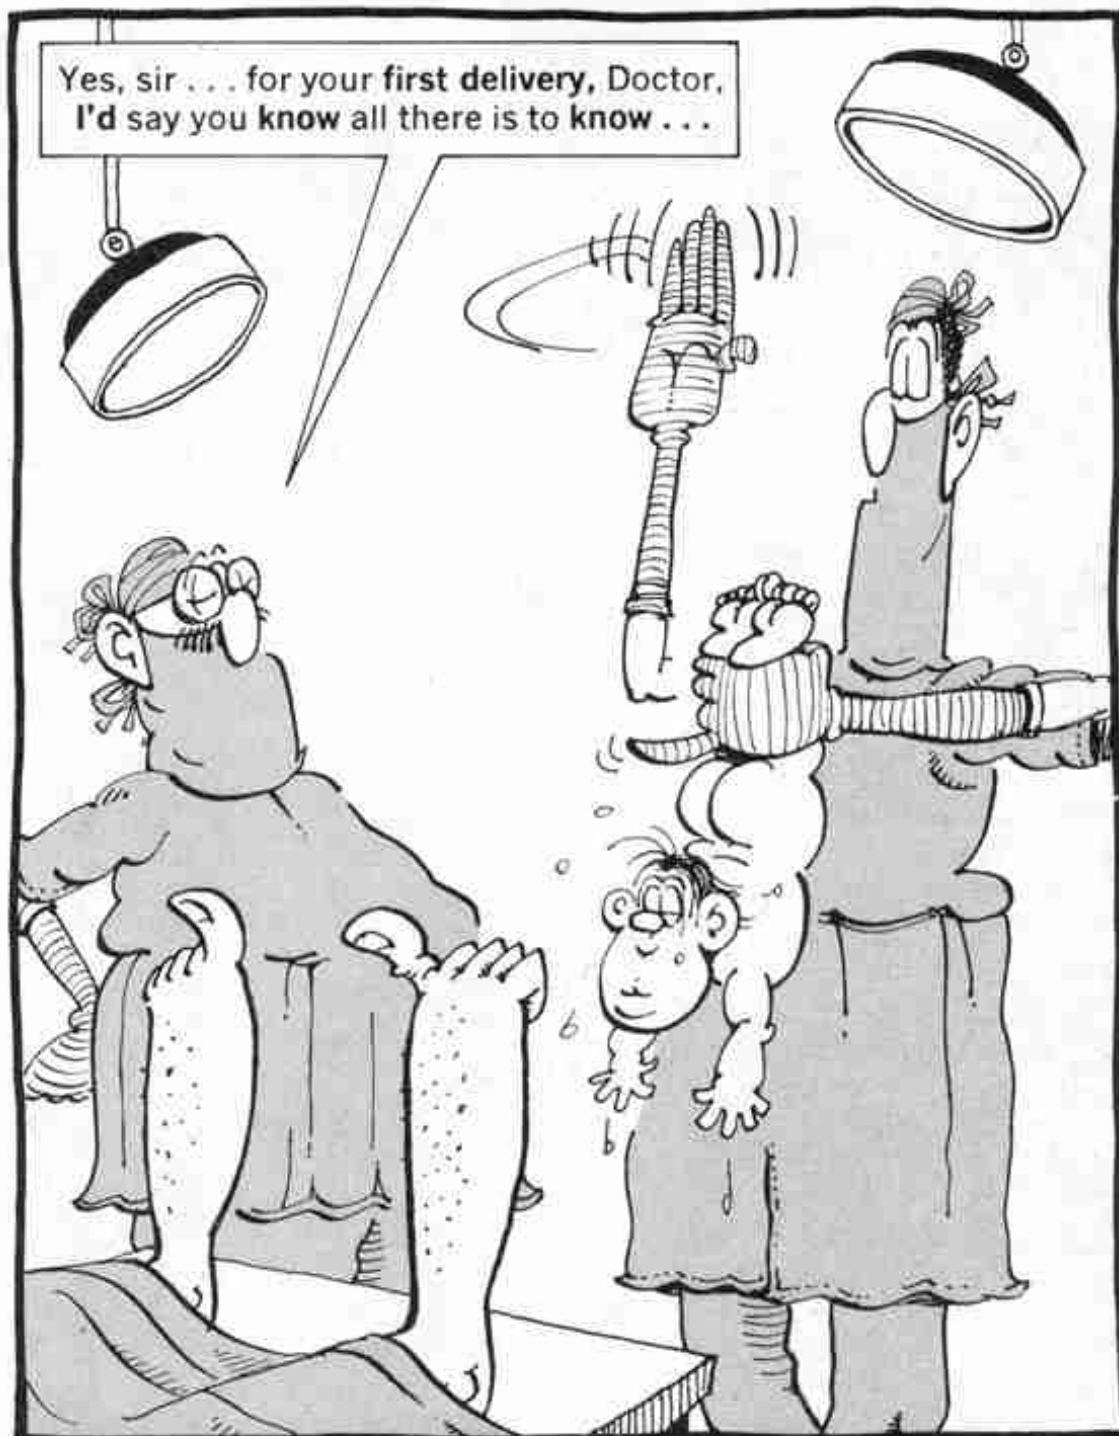

I want a list of names of everyone in New York who's been mugged, or had a member of his family mugged!!

That's easy, Chief! Just pick up the phone book!

Some years ago (In MAD #173 to be exact!), we noted the objections of educators and assorted authorities to traditional Fairy Tales which are filled with an assortment of dragons, wicked stepmothers and other strange creatures who indulge in murder, mayhem and other forms of anti-social behavior. At that time, we contended that even if violence and bloodshed in story books actually were harmful to impressionable

The Man Of The People

Once upon a time, there existed a great land filled with hard-working and prosperous people who enjoyed freedom and prosperity. Through a system called Taxation, the people paid their elected leaders, took care of the needy and sick among them, and supported an army to defend the country in time of danger.

The Law of Taxation was based on the idea of each citizen paying to the country a portion of what he had earned. A man who earned twenty gold pieces would pay one of them, a man who earned forty pieces would pay three of them, and those who earned a great many gold pieces would pay their greater shares in the same fashion.

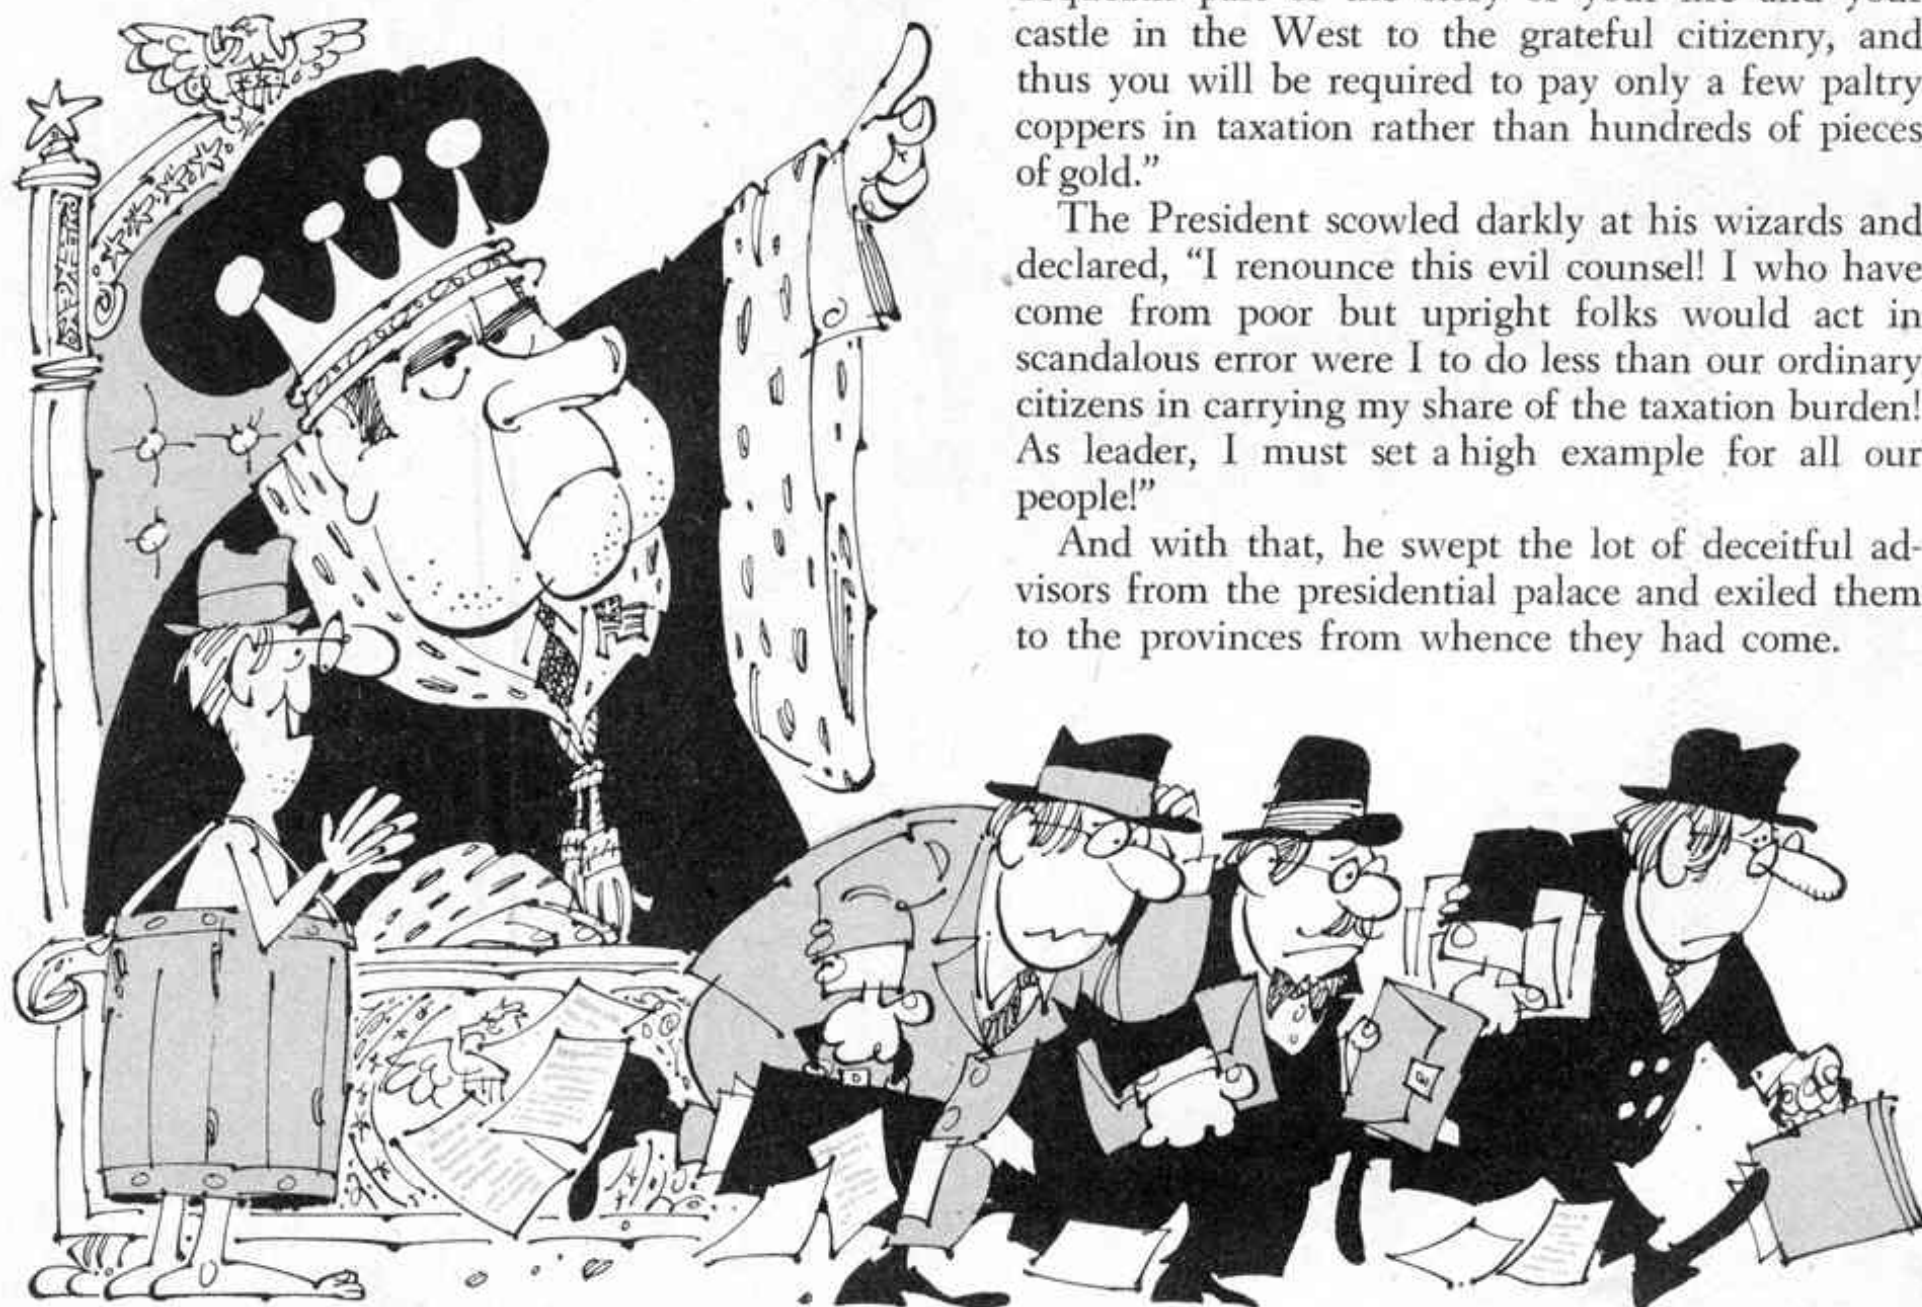

That country's highest leader was called The President, and according to a legend popular among the people, any citizen, no matter how humble his birth, could one day become President. And, in truth, this had happened more than once.

At one particular point in this country's time, there was a President who had fulfilled that legend. Of course, he was paid great sums of gold for the labors he performed in this highest office in the land. He, like the rest of the citizens, was subject to the Law of Taxation.

One day, his Council of Wizards came to him and said, "Sire, we have been studying the Law of Taxation, and if you accept our counsel, you will bequeath part of the story of your life and your castle in the West to the grateful citizenry, and thus you will be required to pay only a few paltry coppers in taxation rather than hundreds of pieces of gold."

The President scowled darkly at his wizards and declared, "I renounce this evil counsel! I who have come from poor but upright folks would act in scandalous error were I to do less than our ordinary citizens in carrying my share of the taxation burden! As leader, I must set a high example for all our people!"

And with that, he swept the lot of deceitful advisors from the presidential palace and exiled them to the provinces from whence they had come.

young minds, children still need heaping helpings of "pure fantasy" in their reading diets. And so we published "Modern Fairy Tales" (That Are Even More Fantastic Than The Old-Time Fairy Tales!) And today, we still believe that children love the unbelievable as much as ever. So we've taken another look around at contemporary society, and we've created this new selection of unreal episodes which we've entitled . . .

N" FAIRY TALES

Than Old-Time Fairy Tales!

The Wise Carriage Makers

Once upon a time, in the city of Detroit, all the potentates of the automobile industry met in solemn session. Matters of great concern had arisen and they had to call upon all their collective wisdom to deal with the problems, which were threefold: Owing to the great numbers of people driving autos on the roadways of the country, there were many accidents, causing much death and injury. The czars of the oil companies had reported that the precious fluid needed to propel the cars was becoming scarce and might run out. The Citizens in the great cities were having difficulty getting from place to place, while great highways were being built across the land with public monies.

The auto potentates invited a scholar named Ralphus, who had studied these problems, to give them the benefit of his knowledge, which he agreed to do.

"What must we do?" the auto potentates cried. The young man replied, "You must take all pains to make the autos stronger to protect the lives of the people. You must make the autos smaller in order to save some of the precious fluid for future generations. You must convince the leaders of the land to take some gold from the building of roads and use it to transport the populace of the crowded cities.

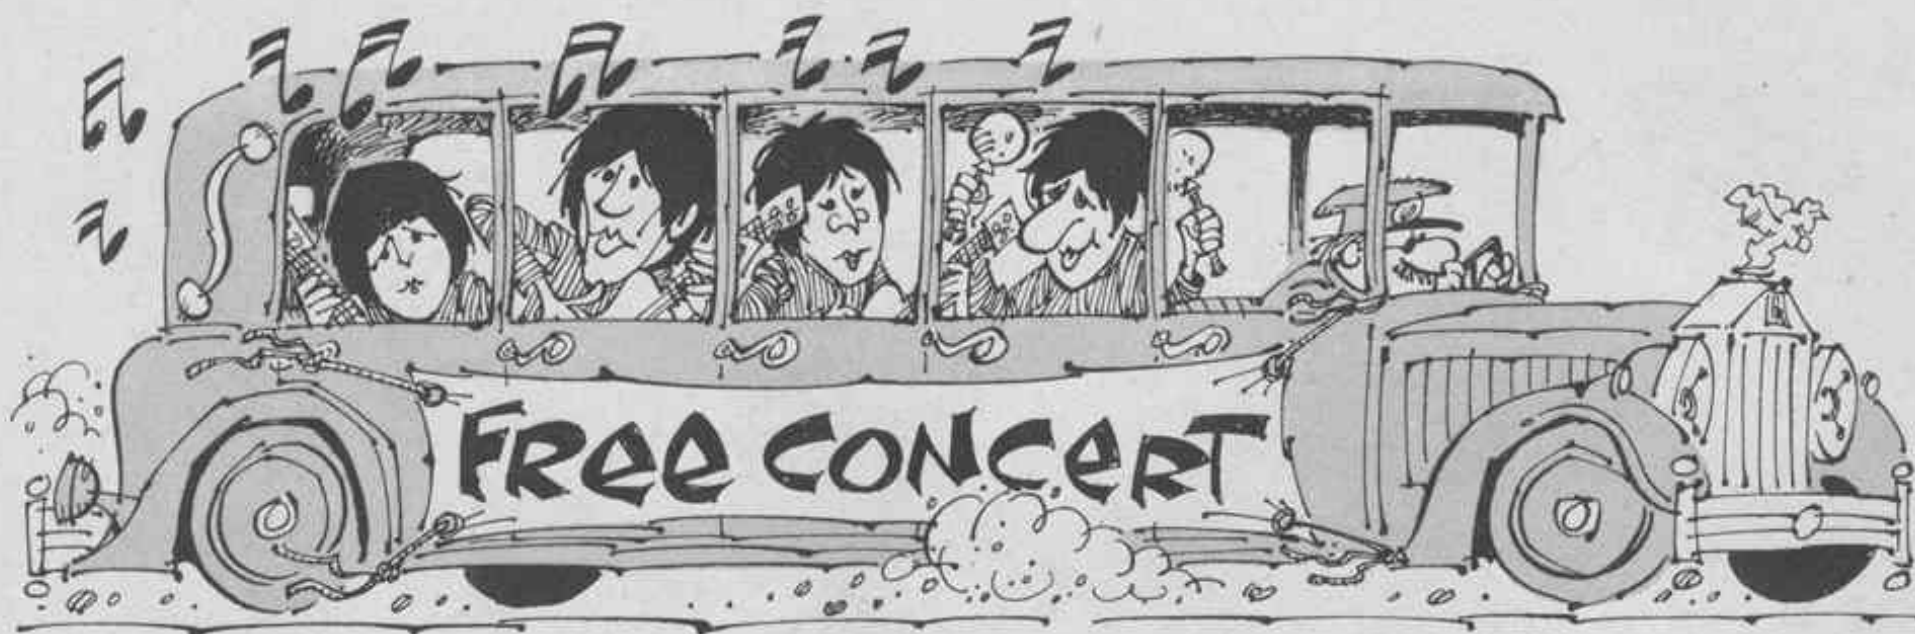

"Bravo!" the auto potentates cheered. "We must reward this young scholar," one of them said. "I have it," said another, "we'll each give a portion of our earnings each year to provide him the means of keeping us supplied with more good ideas in the future, so that we may serve the people well. "Done!" said they all and drank to his good health.

The Generous Minstrels

Once upon a time, there was a group of singers and musicians who had come together as very young people bound by their love of music. Through weeks and years of diligent practice, they became proficient in their art. As their skills grew, so did their reputation, and they found that people were willing to pay to hear them. Their fame spread far and wide, their fees became fabulous, their performances were sold out to the very last seat, and their recordings were distributed around the world.

They grew rich and beloved, but wealth brought with it disputes and discontent. They drifted apart and spent their days battling about money. One day, after months of quarreling in courts of law, one of them said to the others, "Do you realize we're all rich beyond our dreams? Let us return to the simple idea that first brought us together, our love for the music we've created." The others pondered this advice and agreed it was sound. From that day on, they did just that. In gratitude for the love and wealth their millions of fans had given them, they devoted the rest of their lives to traveling everywhere, giving free concerts to all who wished to come.

The Rescue

Once upon a time, scientists and doctors of the country came to suspect that the smoking of cigarettes was likely to make people very ill and kill them years before their normal span of years had passed. They brought their findings to Washington to advise the men who governed the land. "Can this dreadful thing be so?" the shocked leaders chorused. "If so, we must act now to save as many of our citizens as we can! Quickly, let us call in the makers of cigarettes and the congressmen from the tobacco-growing states."

All the makers of cigarettes and the congressmen came and listened in respectful silence as the scientists and doctors told their grim tale and presented the evidence they had gathered over the years. As they finished, one of the cigarette makers jumped to his feet and cried, "I propose we forget about this until we've had a chance to put our own scientists to the task of examining cigarettes!" A congressman from a tobacco state cried, "Y'all tryin' to wreck the economy of mah state? I'm for liberty! We got a right to grow it, and folks got a right to smoke it!"

The rest of the gathering turned and stared incredulously at the two men. "You mean," said another congressman, "that you'd rather grow tobacco and sell cigarettes than save our citizens' lives?"

"Unspeakable!" cried the rest of the assembly as they fell upon the two wretches and flung them from the room.

And so it happened that the tobacco farms switched to food and the cigarette companies went out of business rather than devote their time, knowledge and money to poisoning their fellow human beings.

The Author

There once was a vast, cold land in the East whose people lived out their days without ever being allowed to journey beyond its borders. The people were not overly unhappy about this, it seemed, because they had known no other life. Their rulers were stern men who became furious when criticized. Since the rulers controlled all means of communication in the land, there was little chance of public criticism to anger them.

Then, one man began to write books about his country which were often very critical. And so, the rulers did not permit them to be read by the people, and cast the writer into prison to repent. Friends of the writer managed to send his writings abroad and they were published in other lands, to the great annoyance of the rulers. One day, out of angry curiosity, the Supreme Ruler gathered the man's forbidden books together and began to read them for a clue to what caused the author's unbalanced and criminal behavior. The Supreme Ruler read and read, and at length summoned the errant author and said to him, "I have been struck by the power and sincerity of your writing and your depiction of grave errors committed in our country's past. You are right. We must stop throwing critics into asylums and dungeons and permit our people to travel across our borders as they choose. It is so decreed."

And so the people of the vast cold land were free from that day to come and go in peace. Most stayed, some left. The author stayed and wrote many more books during a long and happy life in his homeland.

The Careful Chemist

Once there was a chemist whose task it was to concoct new medicines for the pharmaceutical firm that employed him. He liked his work and delighted in finding ways of getting chemicals into people's bloodstreams faster than chemists from other companies were able to do. It was a race, and it was fun.

The chemist was especially fond of one project he had worked on for some years. This was a pill that, taken at bedtime, cured headaches and backaches, settled upset stomach, and gave the pill-taker a general glow of good feeling for a day or so. Remarkable to say, this versatile pill would be extremely cheap to manufacture and thus the drug firm could expect to earn enormous sums in the marketplace. The board chairman had taken a lively interest in the new pill and had dubbed it "The Blahs Bomb."

One day the chairman visited the chemist's laboratory, eager to learn whether the tests were complete so that he could begin production and watch the firm's profits soar. The chemist said, "Everything has gone beautifully in our treatment of test patients. One-hundred per cent of them felt immediate relief after taking our pill."

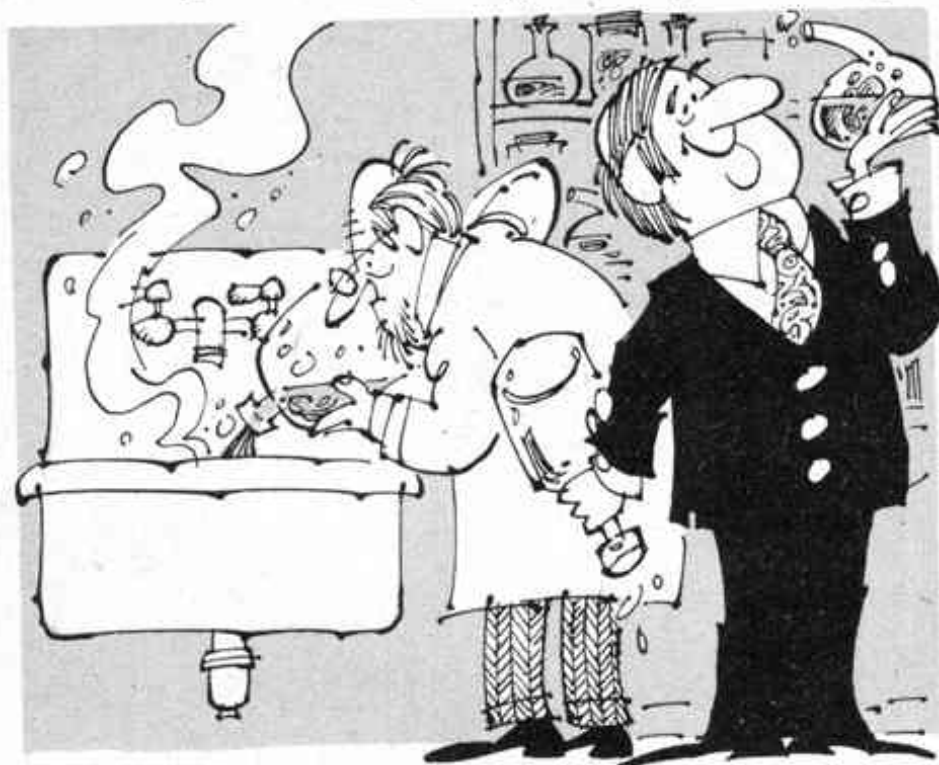

"Fanstastic!" cried the chairman.

"Unfortunately," said the chemist, "one half of one per cent of the test patients suffered a perplexing side effect. They acquired rashes."

"Is that so bad?" asked the chairman.

"The rashes appear to be permanent," replied the chemist.

"Oh dear," sighed the chairman. "Obviously we can't in good conscience subject people to that risk. We have no choice but to abandon the project." And so the chemist and the chairman poured the flasks and bottles full of the precious pill potion down the drain and looked optimistically to the future.

Take my son, for example! He brought home this girl, and she's living with him in his room! I tell you, it's a shame for the neighbors!

What do you care what the NEIGHBORS think?! It's YOUR problem!

No... it's THEIR problem, too!

It's THEIR DAUGHTER!!

Our whole civilization is becoming so complicated, I can't cope with it!

F'rinstance, this Income Tax form! It takes a math genius and a corporation lawyer to fill it out!

And all these electronic gadgets that keep coming out! I don't know how to work half of them, and if they break down, I don't know how to repair them!

I—I couldn't cope with that, either!

Why don't you just chuck it all and move out to the wilderness?

No more insecurity! No more anxiety! I've played that game for the last time! I'm bowing out of the rat race!

My wife and I have wiped the slate clean! We're starting out on a new Life Style . . . with new priorities! We're looking to a future based on solid standards, with deep permanent roots and long meaningful relationships!

Sounds great! How are you going to do that?

We sold our home, and got ourselves a trailer!

First, the GOOD news! You won't have to listen to my voice droning on and on all period long!

Now for the BAD news! I'm giving a surprise test based on the two chapters you were supposed to read last night! And if you think YOU'VE got troubles, just think of ME . . . sitting up half the night, marking your papers!

Okay, Peter Hunt! What are you looking so anxious about?

Well, Sir, first the GOOD news!

There'll be ONE LESS PAPER you'll have to sit up and mark . . .!!

I can't stand these new super highways! Everybody on 'em drives like a maniac!

It's like every driver is hell-bent on speeding to an accident! . . . his OWN!!

You're a fine one to talk! You're driving faster than anyone else around!

That's because I want to get OFF this blasted highway as soon as I can!

What are YOU so down in the dumps about?

I can't get a job!

Yeah, it's tough! But some people are getting them!

I know! But it's tougher for me! I have absolutely no real practical qualifications!

See? You should have prepared yourself!

Yes! I wasted a lot of years!

Doing what?

Getting a Ph.D.!

What a weekend! Have I got trouble! Friday, my super-bright kid announces he's dropping out of college!

You call that trouble?

With money so tight, my wife picks Friday to suddenly go out on a wild spending spree!

You call that trouble?

Business is so lousy that on Friday, my Accountant tells me I won't be able to make next week's payroll!

You call that trouble?

Friday night, my television set blew . . . and I had to go through the whole weekend WITHOUT IT!!

Now, THAT'S TROUBLE!!

That's not a civilized city out there! It's a JUNGLE!

In the old days, they only used to rip off blind newsdealers and little old ladies! But now, they're so desperate that even big, strong, healthy-looking guys like us can be victimized!

I—I never thought I'd be afraid to go out there and make a few bucks!

We're just gonna have to find some other way to make our bread...

... besides mugging!!

Changes... changes! They're coming so rapidly that it's making me into a neurotic!

My big virile Son has turned into a style freak, and now he dresses like a pansy! My little feminine Daughter has become a Women's Libber, and now she dresses like a farmer!

I'd go completely out of my mind if it wasn't for your wonderful reliable stability!

You dressed like a slob in the past... and you're STILL a slob!!

Oooh, I've got a terrible pain in my chest! I think I'm dying!

Again?! You're the world's greatest hypochondriac!

You keep going to Doctors, and they all keep telling you the same thing... that it's just EMOTIONAL! And then, the pain moves to another spot!

Do you understand?!? It's PSYCHOSOMATIC! It's IN YOUR MIND!!

Y'know, you're right!

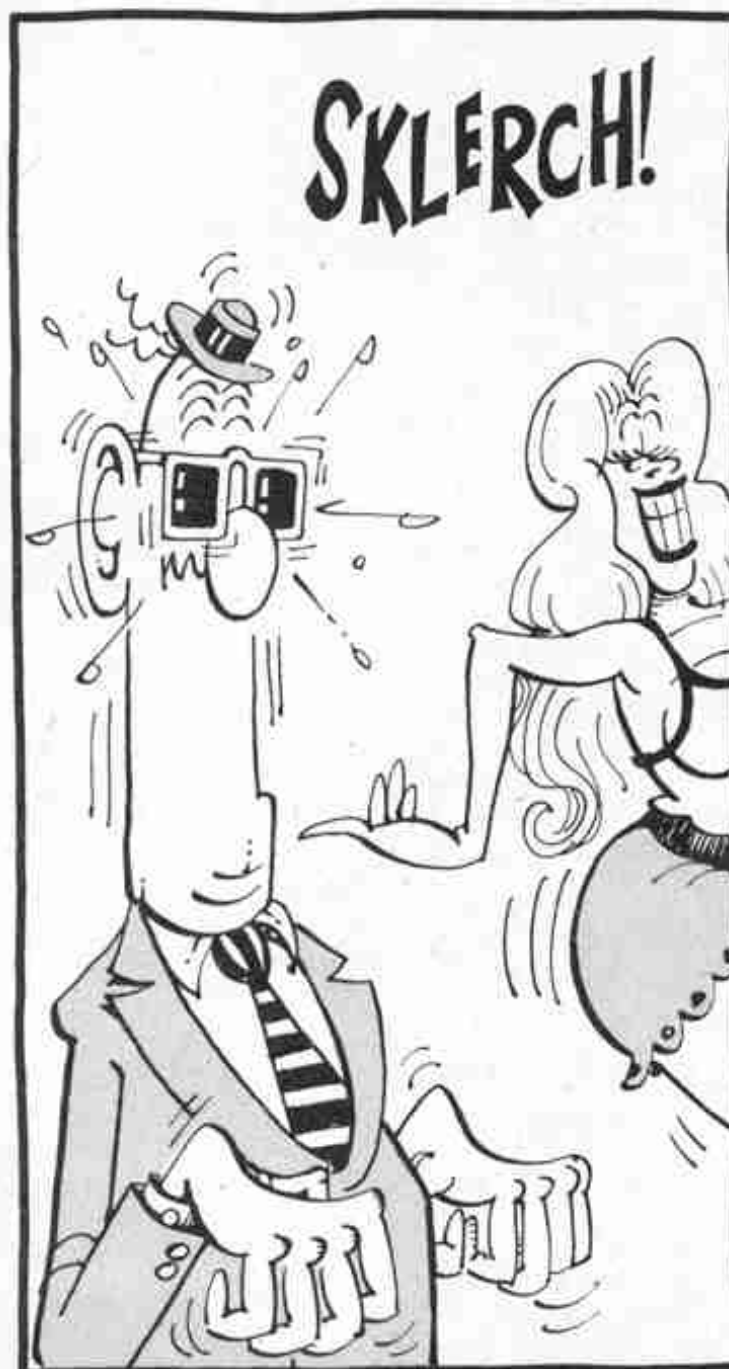

Now... I've got a terrible headache! I think I'm dying!

Dozens of the words we use today come from the names of real people. For instance, "sandwich" is named after the Earl of Sandwich, "bloomer" after Amelia Bloomer, and "zeppelin" after Count Ferdinand von Zeppelin. You never know when someone's name is going to become part of our language and get in the dictionary, but there are a lot of celebrities today who have a good chance. In fact, MAD believes it's time that Noah Webster immortalized these current-day big-shots, namely with these...

Are you having fun?	Oh, yes! I believe I am! You really must forgive me! I've kept to myself and haven't given anyone the chance to talk to me!	Yes . . . I have noticed that all week!	Actually, I am living in the same ROOM with you!	My name is Fedup Swearedlove! I am second in command of the Soviet Secret Police . . . disguised as a Military Attaché in Paris! But, of course, I would have to die before I revealed that!	Of course! I am Jaundice Shallow, a Confidential Assistant to a Confidential Assistant in London, and— as you can see by my wardrobe—a close friend of Christian Dior!	Would you care to have dinner with me tonight?	But, I am the only man on the entire island!
Do you think it might rain?		All WEEK?!? Then you must be staying nearby!	Goodness! I HAVE been out of touch!			Sorry! I'm afraid I have a previous engagement!	Oh! Then I guess my previous engagement must be with YOU!

Are you alive . . . ?

MY-RED SEED

WRITER: DICK DE BARTOLO

I don't like it ONE BIT!
That Russian who's dating Jaundice Shallow is out to GET something!!

You mean
... like ...
SECRETS?!!

Of course! Knowing
THAT frigid broad,
what in heck ELSE
could it be?!!

Here is the report, General Golitziana! So far, they have had dinner together ... and gone for a swim together ... and that is ALL!

That's all?!? That's ALL!?!!
Don't you know that for a Russian, eating out and going for a swim is about as WILD as you can get?!?

Listen! "A slave, accused of stealing a goat, was sentenced to be hanged from a Tommy-Red Tree. Before he died, he protested his innocence, saying that the tree would vindicate him. And ever since then, the Tommy-Red Tree has borne a seed in the shape of a MAN'S HEAD!"

Imagine! A seed shaped like a man's head!

It's good they didn't sentence him to be castrated!

You don't believe the legend ... ?

Well,
let's just say there's a seed
of doubt in my mind!

Why do you feel
so guilty about your Husband's death in that car accident?

Because I always felt that there was something I ... I should have said to him!

That you loved him dearly?

No ... that the BRAKES needed fixing!

Then, after my Husband died, I had an affair with the Senior Air Attaché, Wretched Pitterpat, and I felt even more guilty!

But that is ridiculous! There are many women who have affairs after their Husbands die!

Ten minutes after??

I hear you're running a security check on a chick!

Who told you about that chick check?

None of your stinking business! And I wouldn't go poking around, either, lest you make waves and someone discovers your little secret . . . that you're QUEER!!

QUEER?!? I've been married to you for 15 years . . . and I've never slept with anyone else!!

Well . . . considering how REPULSIVE I am, wouldn't you call that "QUEER"?

Will we see each other again?

Of course!

Does that mean you are starting to like me?

No . . . it means, I still have ten more Dior gowns to wear!

Open this after you are on the plane!

No . . . it is the key to my apartment! This proves I trust you!

Sorry! But THAT I cannot trust you with!

Is it a love letter?

Okay! What's the address?

Remember this: "No one is to be trusted, nothing is to be believed, and everyone is capable of ANYTHING!"

Then we are a perfect match! I trust everyone, I believe everything, and I'm capable of nothing!

Hmmm! If it weren't for the fact that I disbelieve everything, I would believe you!

Well, I'll be—! It's not a key at all! It's a seed in the shape of a man's head! Then the Tommy-Red Tree really does exist!!

Yeah? How come it's melting in your hand?

Why, that big sneaky Russian so-and-so! He carved an M & M!!

Good evening, Miss Shallow!!

What the—! You scared the sh—

Uh-uh!! Remember Mary Poppins!!

Scared the SHIVERS out of me!

I won't beat around the bush! You were seeing a Russian with great regularity in Barbados, Miss Shallow! I demand to know what your position was with him!

Vertical the entire time . . . and get your mind out of the gutter!

I should get MY mind out of the gutter?!

Hello? Where is Boris, my regular Assistant?

That's ridiculous! We don't even HAVE hot water in Russia!

I am his replacement! Boris returned home and had an accident! He fell into a tub of scalding water!

For him, the Government made an exception!!

General Golitziana, while I was in Barbados, I met a very attractive woman I may be able to recruit!

Does she have a Sister? I'd like to do a little recruiting myself!

She's the Confidential Assistant to the nephew of the man in charge of the Ministry of Public Parks!

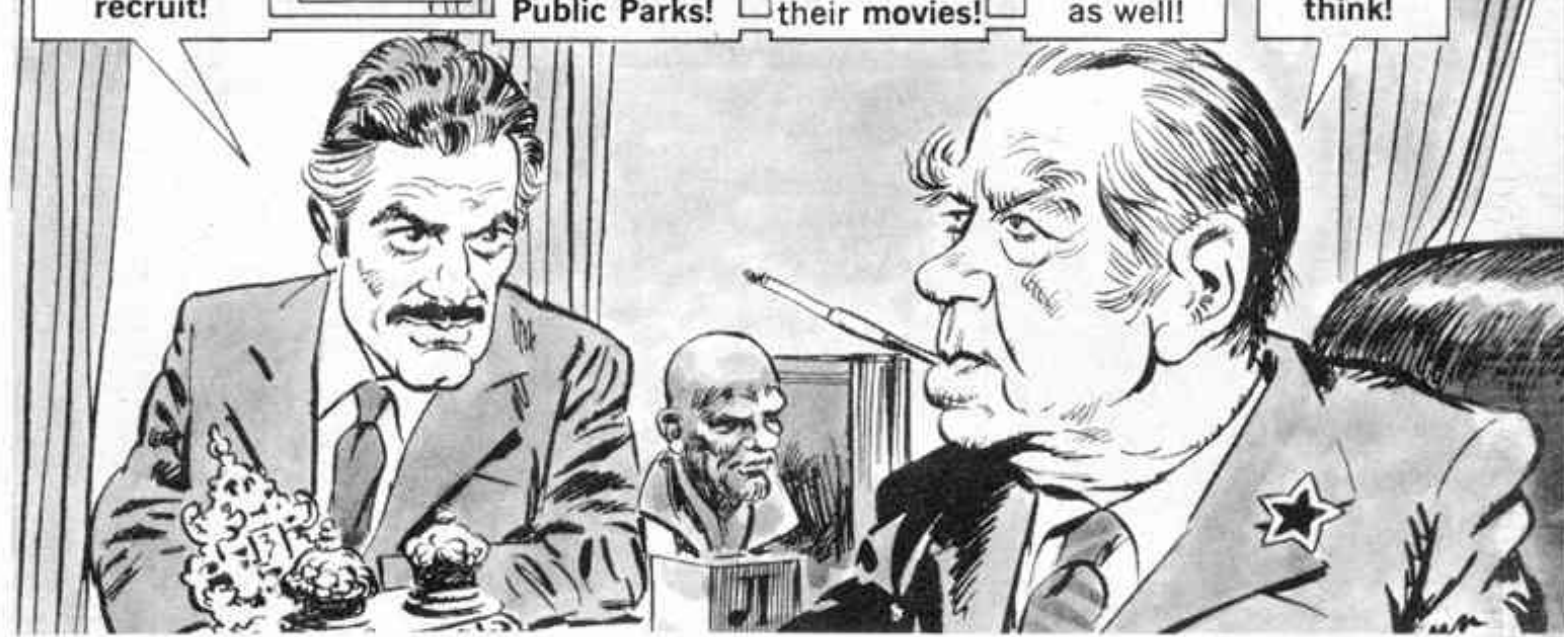

She's THAT important!!? Did you talk Marxism with her?

Yes... and she loves their movies!

What about Lenin?

She likes him, and the rest of the Beatles as well!

Something tells me your mission is going to be a lot harder than you think!

I'm ordering a Black Russian! What wild and whacky drink would you like?

Oh, you English are such a bizarre lot!

I decided it would be best if I told my superior, General Golitziana, all about you and the things we did in Barbados!

A glass of tea!

And what did he say?

z-z-z-z-z-z-z!

Jaundice, I have been very patient up to now! When are we going to sleep together?

Sorry! I'm afraid we don't mean that much to each other!

What?! I spend ten pounds on dinner, and you say we don't mean that much to each other?

Besides, I don't think we should see each other again!

Why? Because it is getting dangerous?

That... and also I can't keep up this "whirlwind pace" forever!

I must see you, Miss Shallow! I have a secret message for Fedup Swearedlove!

Quick! Read it to me!

It says... "aissuR ot nruter uoy dluohs secnatismucric on rednU"

It must be in some sort of secret code!

Not exactly! You're reading it upsidedown!

It says, "Under no circumstances should you return to Russia!"

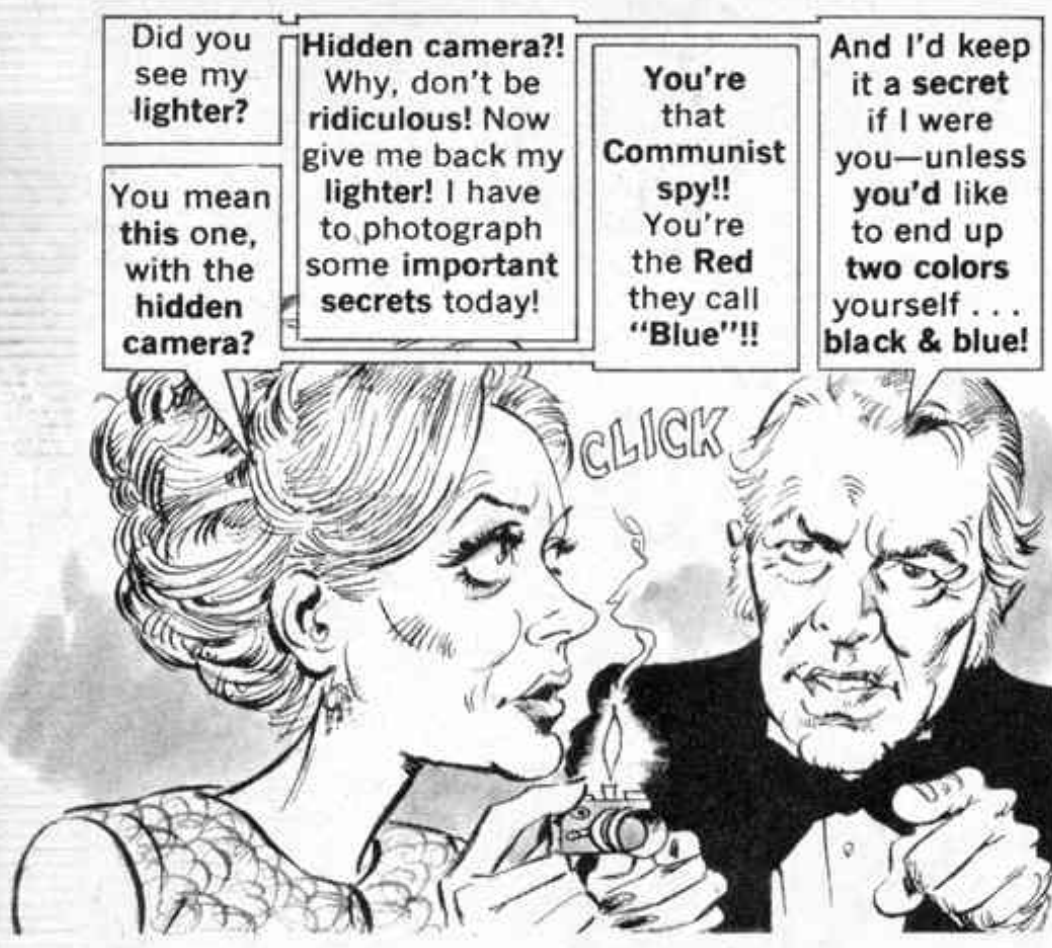

What are you going to do?

Well, my contact, Mr. Loaded, is conveniently out of town, so I'll have to call my ex-lover, Wretched Pitterpat...

Will that help Mr. Swearedlove?

I'm not sure! But it will sure help me! I love talking about my new lovers with my old lovers!

Did you see my lighter?

You mean this one, with the hidden camera?

Hidden camera?! Why, don't be ridiculous! Now give me back my lighter! I have to photograph some important secrets today!

You're that Communist spy!! You're the Red they call "Blue"!!

And I'd keep it a secret if I were you—unless you'd like to end up two colors yourself . . . black & blue!

But I tell you, this man needs political asylum!

I can't tell you! But he's willing to trade it for some important secrets!

I can't tell you! But he's in danger!

I can't tell you! But will you help me?

Forget it! You always were a stickler for details!

WHAT man?

WHAT secrets?

WHAT danger?

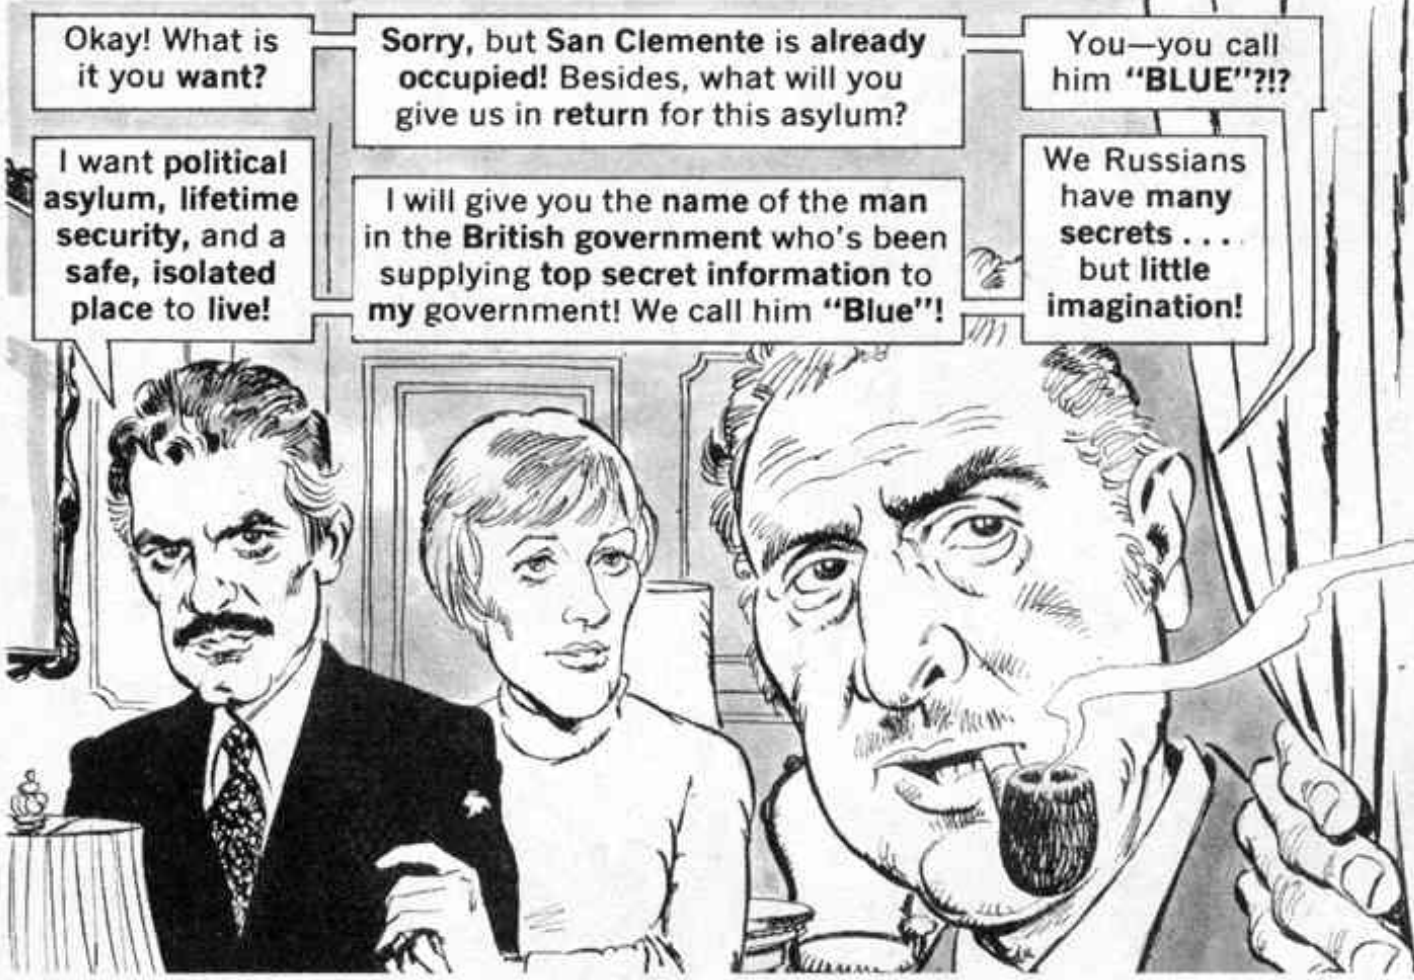

HELP you? I don't even know the problem!!

Swearedlove is to be watched every minute! He has become SUSPECT!

No, his virility! He's been seeing that English woman for ten days and ten nights now . . . and he STILL hasn't scored!!

Do you suspect his patriotism?

Okay! What is it you want?

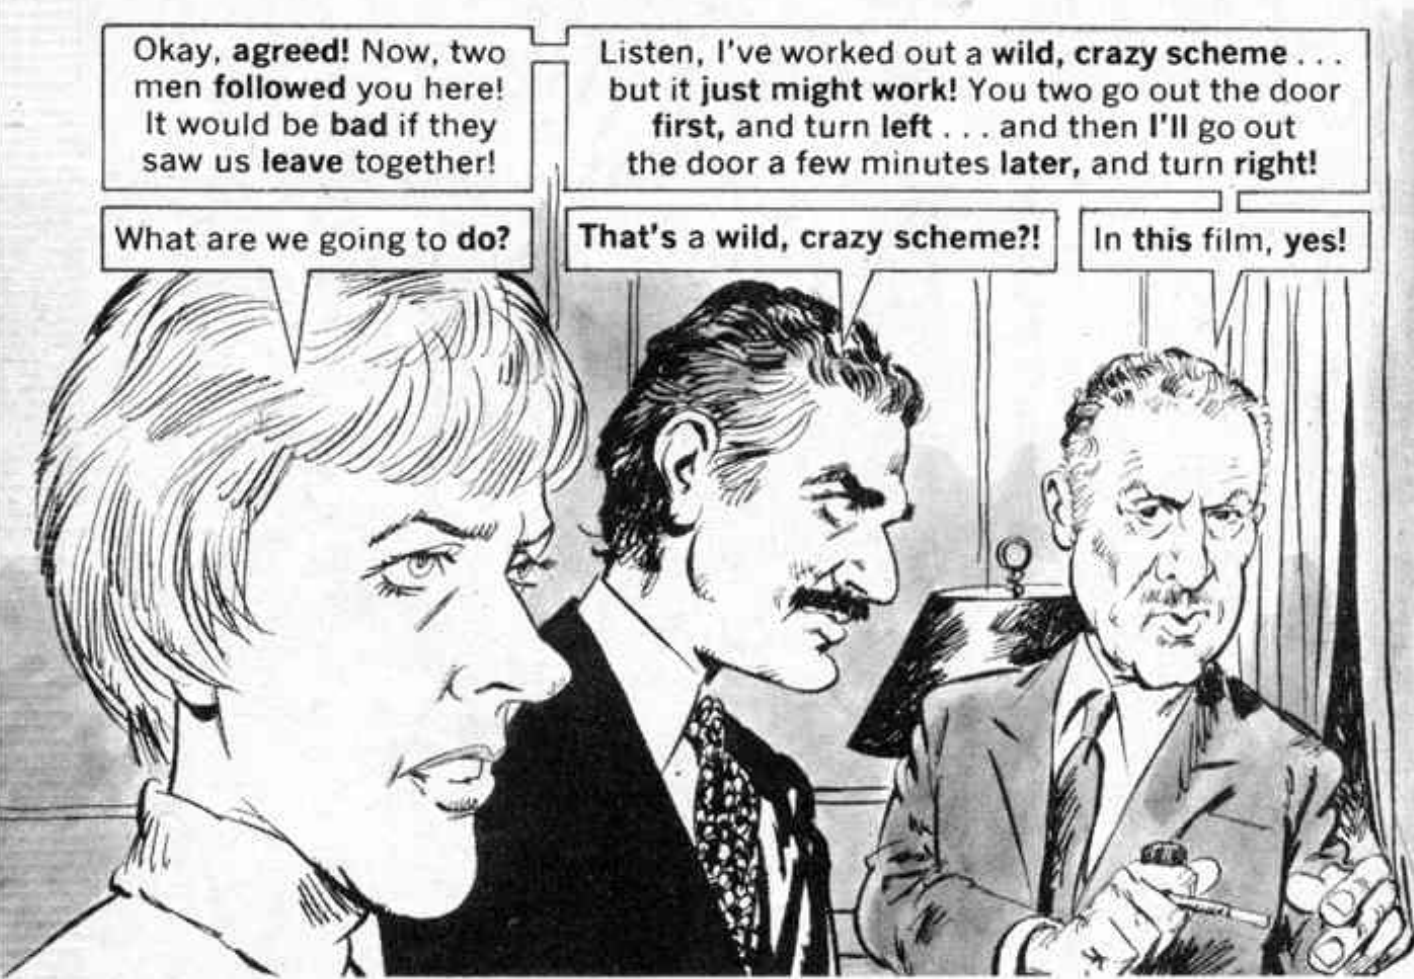

I want political asylum, lifetime security, and a safe, isolated place to live!

Sorry, but San Clemente is already occupied! Besides, what will you give us in return for this asylum?

I will give you the name of the man in the British government who's been supplying top secret information to my government! We call him "Blue"!

You—you call him "BLUE"?!!

We Russians have many secrets . . . but little imagination!

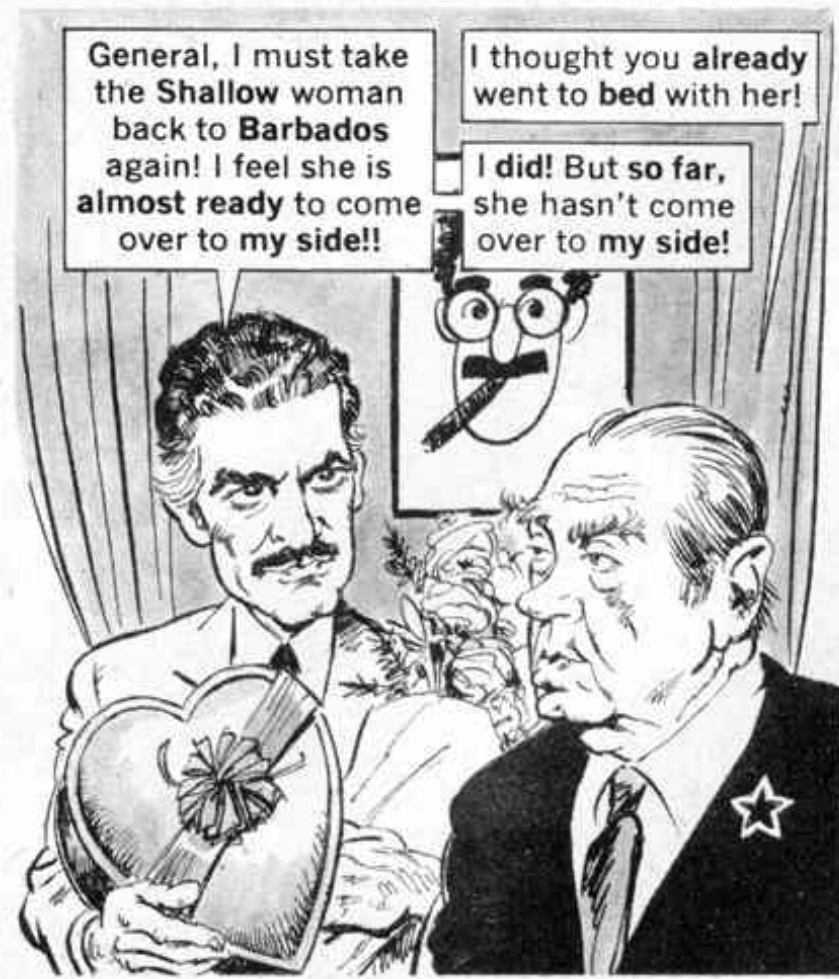

Okay, agreed! Now, two men followed you here! It would be bad if they saw us leave together!

Listen, I've worked out a wild, crazy scheme . . . but it just might work! You two go out the door first, and turn left . . . and then I'll go out the door a few minutes later, and turn right!

What are we going to do?

That's a wild, crazy scheme?!

In this film, yes!

General, I must take the Shallow woman back to Barbados again! I feel she is almost ready to come over to my side!!

I thought you already went to bed with her!

I did! But so far, she hasn't come over to my side!

Good evening, Comrade! I want to see the most secret of all the most secret files—file 33!

Oh, you mean the "Blue File"!

Will someone please get the "Blue File?"

Okay, who's got the "Blue File?"

It's over there, lying on the table!

Er... I won't sign for this top secret file because I'm not taking it out!

That's okay! We're going to close soon, anyway! When you're done with it, slip it under the door!

I'm going swimming!

It's too dangerous! Mr. Loaded says you must stay right here! Besides, you can't let the "Blue File" out of your sight!

Don't worry! I won't! I've got it tucked inside my swim trunks!

You know, we're almost on to the Russian Agent they call "Blue"! Wouldn't it be funny if it turned out to be someone we both knew!!

Er... I get the feeling it would only be funny to ONE of us!

Well?? Are you coming swimming with me, my dear?

I told you... you are not to leave the house!

But you won't come to bed with me... and I am a MAN!! If I cannot have YOU, then I need something ELSE warm and loveable!

How about a Snoopy Doll?

Oh, can I?!? Can I really? A big, soft cuddly plush Snoopy Doll!?!?

Er... tell me that part about being a MAN again??

We've checked out all the flights in the vicinity of Barbados and there's nothing suspicious! Just one private jet with five men, some guns and a case of explosives!

But they're over a hundred miles from Barbados, which means that Swearlove and Miss Shallow are at least three hours out of harm's way... even with the high speed motor cruiser they immediately chartered!

You know, Jaundice, dear! I am terribly frustrated because I cannot have you!

And I am terribly frustrated too, Fedup!

Because you cannot have ME?

No, because the movie's been running for two hours already, and I haven't sung ONE SONG!

Well, at least we DID sleep in the same bed together! But did you notice, we weren't actually shown making love!!

How can two people make love when they're in bed FULLY DRESSED!?!?

Hey, you lovers in there! We've got something for you! Cocktails for two!

Yeah . . . Molotov Cocktails for two!!

They must be AMERICAN tourists! They're always so rowdy!

Listen to this: "A Russian tourist and a British girl were trapped in a Barbados bungalow yesterday when it was gutted by fire following several huge explosions and scattered shots and gunfire. Police blame the fire on a defective toaster plug."

Now the big question is: Did the file burn too . . . because if it didn't, Blue has a black mark on his white record!

. . . And if Maggot doesn't shut her mouth, she's going to see her red blood all over the green carpet!

Where can I find Jaundice Shallow?

Why . . . she's over there . . . signing autographs!

I've come to give you this, Jaundice! It's a note! Open it!

It—it's a Tommy-Red Seed! But, where did you get this . . . ?

Yes . . . Fedup is not dead! After this, his ACTING CAREER may be dead, but he's ALIVE!

Oh, Fedup! I thought you were dead! Now, we can be together always!

Dear Jaundice! At long last, the frustration is finally over, isn't it . . . ?

Oh, yes!!

THE HILLS ARE ALIVE . . . WITH THE SOUND OF MUSIC!!

Well, that takes care of HER frustration! God knows what I'm to do for MINE!
